Childrens pool 11/25

Was diving San Diego last week and felt responsible to make a showing at CP. Your seal lady had blocked the entry to the beach with some duct tape. dozens of spectators walked down the stairs to the landing but would go no further because they didn't know who blocked the beach or if it was legit. My buddies and I walked down and removed the tape and went down on the beach. we stayed to the left well away from the seals that didn't budge the whole time we were there until she started screaming at us over her bull horn that we were committing a federal crime blah blah blah. Once she started yelling some of the seals did go into the water but who's to say they wouldn't have anyway? Thank you San Diego Freedivers and everyone who fights the good fight to keep CP open to the public.

so the hippies taped up the stairwell again. I took some pics and kept the cones and tape. I'll put them up in a few.

Here's a pic. I went again on Friday night around midnight and it was there. I took the cones and tape and brought it over to the divers table on Saturday afternoon and made an official complaint with Ranger Rick...

So I thought it was just bs-ing early, but I actually heard some woman start arguing about how it was a natural seal habitat and that we are assholes for scaring them away into the water...I don't understand how some people can be so dumb.
