About

San Diego is slowly being forced to recognize the sensitive and beautiful creatures all around them. With the recent Seal Beach victory getting a year-round rope, protection and a camera and the recent fireworks victory, we are seeing sensitive habitat being protected. Two wonderful attorneys, Bryan Pease and Marco Gonzalez have teamed up to protect the seals and stop the environmentally destructive firework show.

Now it is time to turn our attention to the Sea Lion colony at La Jolla Cove. Those poor animals have it even worse than the seals! There is no rope, no camera and NO PROTECTION! I have watched people shine lights on them, taunt them, push them off the rocks, scare them etc.... Divers are constantly swimming right next to the rocks and scaring the sea lions. The hotel across the street shines a giant spotlight on the Cove disturbing all manner of marine life!!!! La Jolla Cove was just named a top 10 beach in America partly because of the Sea Lions! Why can't people watch from a safe distance without disturbing the Sea Lions and other wildlife?! As Marco Gonzalez said, "The Cove is a pristine, highly protected habitat". How can we have thousands of divers, swimmers and kayakers disturbing the wildlife with no regard for nature? Unfortunately, the current rules are not enforced and the existing level of protection is not enough!

Fortunately, La Jolla Cove is now a State Marine Reserve. According to the law, "(A) State Marine Reserves: In a state marine reserve, it is unlawful to injure, damage, take, or possess any living, geological, or cultural marine resource, except under a scientific collecting permit issued pursuant to Section 650 or specific authorization from the commission for research, restoration, or monitoring purposes." In-fact, several State Marine Reserves in San Diego County already close sensitive habitat areas to keep people from disturbing wildlife! At Batiquitos Lagoon, regulations state, "Boating, swimming, wading, and diving are prohibited within the conservation area." Why can't a small area of La Jolla Cove be set aside for the protection of the Sea Lions? A swimming corridor could be allowed to protect existing activities and the Sea Lions could get some protection.
